

Budget grocer takes Pa. space

PHILADELPHIA: Metro Commercial announced that it has brokered a nearly 17,000 s/f lease transaction for Save-A-Lot supermarket in Philadelphia, Pa.

Michael Murray of Metro Commercial represented Save-A-Lot in the lease transaction. The supermarket, which is expected to open next spring, joins Family Dollar in the redeveloped former Levitz Furniture space at 2201 Oregon Avenue. Murray also represented the supermarket in its Philadelphia openings at 29th and Dauphin and 48th and Brown, as well as Ewing, Millville, and Lindenwold, N.J. Metro Commercial has leased a total of nearly 130,000 s/f to the store's locations throughout the region.

"Save-A-Lot is one of the few retailers expanding during these challenging economic times," says Murray. "The supermarket, which continues to emerge as one of the nation's premier value-added grocery chains, offers groceries at savings of up to 40 percent less than conventional stores through a combination of factors." ■
